MATT MCKINLEY

They say in East Texas that the men grown up strong and tall like the pine trees that cover the land. If that is the case, then Matt McKinley is a true product of his roots.

Growing up near Henderson, Matt learned his work ethic loading feed and materials for customers at his father's Circle M Farm and Ranch store at the ripe old age of nine. From sweeping floors to loading grains, Matt, even now has never found a job he doesn't excel at.

Leaving East Texas for the corporate world of Olive Garden, Matt blossomed in the hurried life of the restaurant business until he decided to come back to East Texas and work with his father at Sundowner

Trailers of Texas, in Canton. His life took a turn when he was involved in a motorcycle accident which left him wheel chair bound, but that never stopped him or even slowed him down.

Married with two children, Matt spreads his message of hard work and giving opportunities to others. "People have to dream - they have to know how to get what they want," he told me. So with wit and wisdom, Matt is using his business to show people that everything in life can be what they want it to be.

Horse trailers are his passion now, and like his father he knows them from trailer hitch to loading door. He can name any part you might need or show you the best placement for your feed bag. He is a man with a mission, and that mission is not only to make the most of his life, but all of the lives that he touches.
